Description

Consider updating the Redmine install to the 2.5.x release branch.

The newest branch allows the watching of News, so users can "watch" news and other things without being a member of the project. This has kept us from using such features to release announcements, but it would be really handy.

There are other niceties added such as support for Markdown, which has the potential to be much better than the limited Textile support in Redmine.

History

One potential issue regarding Markdown support, the Markdown/Textile switch is a global setting, so we would have to convert all existing pages and all authors would need to switch to Markdown.

Aye, yeah, we probably wouldn't switch everything to Markdown.

The news watching makes considering an update still worth it though.

If possible, we should always try to stay up to date with releases. RedMine's most recent stable release is now 2.5.2.

#4 - 09/02/2014 01:36 PM - Adam Clark

- Resolution set to Fixed
- Status changed from New to Resolved

Updated to 2.5.2

#5 - 01/05/2022 10:01 AM - Adam Clark

- Status changed from Resolved to Closed
